Battle of Crete Said to Weigh North Fighting

PREMEDITATED attacks for Britain and her Axis foe alike are involved in the war in French mandated Syria and Lebanon; but for once the military odds are with the British troops and their Free French allies.

French Ships In U.S. May Not Be Taken Over

By JOHN A. REICHMANN

WASHINGTON, June 10.—(AP)—His government officials said today that the United States, moving to exert new pressure on France, has given some assurances that it does not intend at this time to requisition the 11 French vessels tied up in American ports.

Campaign Played Big Part In Nile Valley

Defence Says Premier

LONDON, June 10.—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, facing the House of Commons to discuss the loss of Crete, declared today that this "sombre and ferocious battle" was "well worth fighting" and that it would play an "extremely important part" in the defence of the Nile Valley.

Imperial War Cabinet Again Is Turned Down

LONDON, June 10.—(CP)—

Prime Minister Churchill today rejected a suggestion in the House of Commons that he form an empire war cabinet, including representatives of the Dominions.

The Prime Minister replied "no" when a suggestion to this effect was made by Edgar Granville, National Liberal, who had raised the question in the House on several previous occasions.

CITES OTTAWA MOVE

The member also suggested the House of Commons be asked to enable Dominion prime ministers to attend sittings of the House of Commons during visits to Britain for consultation with the war cabinet.

Mr. Granville, who said the amendment would facilitate close and more direct co-operation in the empire war effort, drew attention to a recent precedent at Ottawa, when Prime Minister R. G. Menzies of Australia addressed the Canadian House of Commons. He asked Mr. Churchill if it would not be a good precedent to copy in Britain.

"The answer is 'no' the prime minister replied. 'Anyone who has experience in the House of Commons will realize that such a step would be a serious departure from the usual practice of the House of Commons.'"

LAC, John William Dadds, R.C.A.F., 23, who was killed when making a solo flight in a training plane, on the western outskirts of the city, at 7:15 a.m. Tuesday.

Leading Aircraftman John William Dadds, Jr., R.C.A.F., 23, son of John W. Dadds, 1215 91st street, was killed when the Tiger Moth training plane in which he was making a solo flight, crashed near the city's western limit at 7:15 a.m. Tuesday.

This was the first fatal or serious accident in connection with training of air force pilots at No. 16 Elementary Flying Training School since it was opened here November 13, 1940.

Maurice W. Plunkett, manager of the school, stated that the cause of the crash had not yet been determined. An official inquiry into the circumstances would be held.

The school is operated by Pilot Officer Fred H. Hall, in charge of the R.C.A.F. hospital at No. 1 Air Observers' School.

The machine was badly wrecked and the pilot, who was not injured, was taken to the hospital.

BORN IN EDMONTON
LAC Dadds, the pilot of the plane, was born in Edmonton on June 8, 1917, and was educated in the city public schools. He attended his senior matriculation from Victoria High school and took the general examination course at McGill University.

He entered the service of the provincial government, in the department of education, on February 13, 1937, and left on January 9, 1941, to join the R.C.A.F.

After completing his course at Brandon, Rivers and the initial flight school in Regina, he was assigned to No. 16 E.F.T.S. here on May 16.

He is the son of John W. Dadds, four brothers, Jonathan, Francis, Douglas, and Alexander, all in the R.C.A.F.

Mr. Dadds, with an Alberta Regiment, overseas; James H. Dadds, in Edmonton; and Thomas H. Dadds, in Windsor, Ontario; and two sisters, Mary Margaret and Elizabeth Catherine, both in Regina.

Funeral arrangements are in charge of Howard and McBride and will be announced later.

Allied Troops Are Now Within Sight Of Syrian Capital

No Indication Yet Whether Defenders Plan To Offer Resistance Outside City Says Authoritative British Source

CAIRO, June 10.—(AP)—British and Free French columns are within sight of Damascus, capital of Syria, but it remains to be seen whether the defenders will offer resistance outside the ancient city, an authoritative British spokesman said tonight.

CAIRO, June 10.—(AP)—Free French headquarters announced tonight that its forces in Syria were near Damascus, capital of the Mandate, and other French sources here said they were expected to enter the city tonight or early tomorrow.

LONDON, June 10.—(CP)—Three British and Free French columns were reported pushing steadily deeper into French-mandated Syria and Lebanon today with only slight losses, threatening the capital cities of Damascus and Beirut with swift capture.

British spokesmen said Allied casualties were slight. There was no indication whether resistance had been encountered.

"Token opposition" was said to have been offered at several points by French troops, but they were reported to have surrendered or withdrawn under swift threats of mechanized forces.

Official version of the Allied drive made no mention of contact with German troops, which had been reported infiltrating into the French mandate for several weeks.

Victory Loan Passes Half-Way Mark With $309,897,400 Taken

OTTAWA, June 10.—(CP)—Canada's 1941 Victory Loan boomed past the half-way mark as Canada observed the King's birthday today by pouring $309,897,400 into the loan chest, the national war loan committee announced today.

Yesterday's subscription brought the total to $309,897,400.

The daily average required to put the $600-million loan over the top by June 31, when bonds are scheduled to be closed, is $23,000, and the committee expressed satisfaction that yesterday's subscription, with banks closed for the King's birthday holiday, subscriptions topped the daily average.

It was anticipated that subscription yesterday would take a dip in the afternoon, but the closed purchases on the holiday brought total subscriptions to $282,500.

While the total exceeds those of the first and second war loans by a substantial margin, it still falls far short of the achievement marked by the first Great War, said the loan committee.

The committee announced the London Life Insurance Company of Canada had placed its order for $100,000.

The Ford Motor Company of Canada had placed its order for $100,000.

French Asked To Support Policy Of Collaboration

VICHY, June 10.—(AP)—Vice Premier Admiral Darlan tonight appealed to France for unreserved support for his policy of collaboration with Germany in building a "new Europe."

Darlan, who in his last message to Churchill delivered a bitter attack against Britain, did not even mention the spread of the "war to France" in his broadcast today.

His message was an impassioned, renewed appeal for unity. He exhorted the French not to believe the promises of the policy of collaboration with Germany.

He berated what he called "sterile arguments and acid criticism" of policy and "numerous unwise and imprudent proposals" for the understanding of the nation.

The vice premier declared the government had three important tasks:

1. To save the present situation of the French people.

2. To prepare for peace under the Vichy regime.

3. To prepare for France's future in a "New Europe."

Benito Defies United States To Enter War

ROME, June 10.—(AP)—Mussolini tonight defied the United States, Italy's ally, to declare war against the Axis.

Addressing the Chamber of Deputies at the anniversary of Italy's entrance into the war, he said that Italy would not enter her part with Germany and Italy in the event of an American aggression against the Axis.

"Japan's attitude is a perfect insult to the tripartite pact," he said.

"The Japanese are in a proud and arrogant position which could not remain indifferent to the face of American aggression against the Axis."

He boasted that "Greece recedes into Italy's vital space in the Mediterranean," charged Turkey with "betraying Greece in the Greco-Italian war," and said:

"It was a mathematical certainty in 1938 that the Balkan dispute between the Italian and German empires would be broken through the Greek defences."

POISON SPREADING

This position in Syria was very nearly gone. German poison was spreading through the country. The revolt in Iraq, perhaps beginning prematurely, enabled us to take necessary measures and correct the to give way to jubilation while we are engaged in operations of this difficult character and when the reaction of the Germans still remains uncertain.

It is very easy for critics, without troubling too much about our resources and often without sense of time and distance, to clamor for action, now here and now there, in the strategic and political situation at the moment.

Anybody had said in June last year that we hold Egypt, guard of the territories for which Great Britain is responsible in the Middle East, that we should have held Syria, Iraq, Persia, the empire, that Egypt, Palestine and Iraq would have been successfully defended—anyone who said that would have been thought a foolish position at the moment.

It is more than three months ago since the Germans gave out the ultimatum to the Soviet Union that would be in force in a month and a half. The ultimatum demanded that when Suiz fell they would have to come into the war.

Two months ago we were told that the Germans were not to be forced to capitulate, and that we also warned of a German thrust Assiut, at the head of the Delta.

ENEMY WAS ABLE

And many important strategic advantages.

For these reasons I have never encouraged any hopes of a rapid end to the Iraqi occupation of Kuwait. Nonetheless it would be a mistake to go to the other extreme and to belittle the remarkable achievements of our country and its armed forces.

All has now been regained at the frontiers of Iraq and Syria. We are advancing in Syria in force. Our front at Mersa Matruh in the western desert is secure. Our rear defensive lines there are

There is no truth in the statement that productivity in the Sudan is falling at an alarming rate. It may not be going as fast as we should like, but if anyone can do anything to make it go faster he will be ensuring a great service.

In guns and heavy tanks, the United States' first quarter of 1941 was 50 per cent greater than in first quarter of 1940. Output for the month of May, a four-week month, was the highest yet reached in the war. The rate of increase in production for the last quarter in 1940

I took care to contradict the right honorable gentleman's (Hore-Belisha's) statement this afternoon because he was wrong. It was not a branding with failure or taunt to the great campaign for the defence of the Middle East which has so far prospered. It was a statement of fact and is now entering upon an even more intense and critical stage.

I give no guarantee. I make no promise or prediction for the future. I do not know what will happen in the next few months, during which we must expect ever harder fighting against many disappointments, should we

Very many things we may be thankful for. Our production is very far from being beaten down by the disorganization of the air attack. It is increasing at a very high rate.

The Battle of the Atlantic is also being well maintained. In January Hitler mentioned March as the peak month of his effort against us on the seas. We were to be exposed to attacks from the air, from submarines and there were rumors of hundreds of U-boats and masses of aircraft that were to be used against us.

Ask for CANADA DRY

It is very much easier to sink ships than to build them or bring them safely across the ocean. We have lately been taking a stronger hand in this sinking process ourselves and it is a most astonishing fact that in the month of May we sank, captured or saw scuttled no shipping although they presented a target only one tenth of what we present to them.

While they sink along from port to port, we maintain our whole worldwide traffic with never less than 1,000 ships on the sea or less than 100 in the danger zone on any day. Yet the losses we inflicted in the month of May were in the nature of three-fourths of the losses they inflicted on us.

Wavel Struck First

The British-Free French invasion of Syria was politically in the logic of things. For the Allies to "wait and see" while a Nazi army was mobilized for an attack on Egypt or Iraq would have been inconceivably dumb, assuming that we have forces and equipment to justify preventive action. Fortunately the wind-up of the Ethiopian campaign gave General Wavell striking power to spare in that direction which would have been lacking on the border of Libya. For once we have beaten the Nazis "to it," and struck before they were ready.

Vichy may declare war against Britain as the result. That risk had to be taken, and the possibility is not to be overlooked. The difference would be that if this does not follow, but how much difference an open declaration of war would make is a matter of speculation. The difference would be in change at Vichy from a policy of neutrality to a policy of hostility, for Vichy petitioned its neutrality some weeks ago when it turned up at the armistice and made a new treaty of collusion with Germany.

From that date Vichy has been giving the Axis powers all the assistance they asked for, short of openly breaking with Britain and turning over its warships. The Axis powers have suggested that these sole remaining steps between "collaboration" and military alliance would have been taken whenever the Axis powers could wear down Britain's weakening resistance. If they are able to engineer the break now, the invasion of Syria will only have been a tactical show-down in place of the continuing move toward bellicosity.

Had the Axis been able to establish control of Syria and gain vital forces there as they were starting to do—Turkey would have been completely isolated and put under probably irresistible pressure to join the Axis "orbit." With British-Arabic troops in control of Syria, the Turks were to be in touch with their friends and reach the point where they need Ankara welcomes the prospect that the Germans and Italians will be ousted from the neighborhood and that they have been ousted, Turkey may be expected to take a firmer stand against the demands and threats of Von Papen.

Batavia Says "No"

As they had warned they would do, the authorities of the Netherlands East Indies have rejected the Japanese demand for greatly increased supplies of rubber, tin, oil and other commodities. In so doing they are not accepting Japan's Axis-type "new order" economics, and will continue to accept or other materials for trans-shipment to Germany or Italy. Japan will have to be satisfied with the amounts it has been importing for its own use.

As Japan has been importing these materials in quantities sufficient for its war in China, it is thus given no more upon which to base its effort to resort to force on its own account. Should it try to enforce its ultimatum, the United States and Britain will be on hand to back up the European powers. The Netherlands East Indies will be on hand to back up the European powers. The Netherlands East Indies will be on hand to back up the European powers.

Tokyo is now confronted with the consequences of its deal with the Axis powers. It must either give up its policies for them or tell them it can't or won't try. The choice is to start war in the Pacific or leave its associates in the lurch. The latter course is supposed to give Japan the backing of Germany and Italy, and frighten the United States into backing Japan to Britain, has back-fired. It is Japan that is now on the spot.

Perhaps Tokyo will start war in the Pacific at the first sign of Axis oblige Adol and Benito. But that was not the idea with which it joined the Axis. It is a military, not a political, expedition policy with which Japan and Germany and Italy the war cabinet at Tokyo put their names on the dotted line. But the United States and Britain have been asked to support Japan. It went right on shipping supplies to Britain in ever-increasing amounts, began to build up its own defenses, and kept its hands off the deal. The deal did not help Germany and Italy as they intended. And it is not helping Japan as it intended.

One guess being as good as another, the chance rather is that Matsukata will take refuge behind the "escape clause" in the German-Japanese alliance. Berlin and Rome they will have to go along without the East Indies supplies they evidently want.

Britain's War Enters Offensive Phase

Two Vital War Factors Depend on Success of Move Into Levant

By HAROLD L. WEIR

Upon the success of the British move into Syria and the Levant, the offensive conduct of the war—two factors capable of deciding the entire course of the struggle—will be determined. The success of the offensive policy adopted by our strategists will be determined.

First Naval Gun Mounting Tested—OTTAWA, June 10.—(CP)—The first naval gun mounting ever made in Canada has just been completed and the firing trials have been made successfully. The Department of Munitions and Supply announced Monday night.

It is said the present program for manufacture of these machines in Canada was the first time such an order had been placed outside England. The contract was awarded to the Ontario Manufacturing Corporation.

The twin anti-aircraft machine gun mounting was described as "a masterpiece of engineering and highly sensitive mechanism." A complete defense unit with gun, gunner, and breech mechanism was sent to several hundred pounds.

Labor Problem One For Study Industry Told

By TOM FAHLEY
SENIORITY CLUB, Que. June 10.—(CP)—Some Canadian employers have failed to realize the importance of labor management and could have a long and painful personal direction from some of their conferees in the United States. Dr. Bruce M. Stewart, president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, said today in an address at the first business session of the Canadian Manufacturers Association annual convention here.

"Today, labor management is a large and complex business and the idea that labor can be dealt with as a simple matter is a thing of the past," said Dr. Stewart. He spoke in place of Labor Minister Mackenzie King, who was in Ottawa through pressure of government business.

"At the basis of all business are the thousands of working people who make the goods," he said, adding that firms should have a man fully trained in leadership to be on the job directing them.

"PERSONNEL DIRECTOR"—In the United States, the hotel-organized corporations have a "personnel director" with the status of vice-president who working beside the president and planning the program year ahead and keeping things in line.

"These United States firms which employ competent personnel directors," he said, "are constantly in strike news today."

"When President Roosevelt introduced the National Labor Relations Act, many large business already had organized personnel plans so that when the act came into effect they had built up reserves and were 'out ahead'."

"On the management side," Dr. Stewart said, "I am appealing for the British government, the Canadian government, and the American government to plan for the future and proper plan in advance."

"Some day we should build a strike and a labor union," he said, "but it should be a voluntary right to strike, not a compulsory one. We should have a law that would give workers a right to be free from the same kind of union as they are in."

NEW SYSTEM—Some manufacturers had made the law an excuse for demanding conditions. The government was setting up a new system of "investigating boards" to go into action immediately to investigate disputes.

"It was expected these boards would be able to dispose of many of the complaints," he said, "without setting up the conciliation boards."

Part of today's labor problem was a result of a great upsurge in the production of goods and services during the past few months. The government was trying to keep up with the demand for goods and services.

"If you find a worker in a shop," he said, "he is not a worker, he is a man. He is a man who is working 'for' and 'with' the employer, not 'against' him."

INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCES—E. M. Little, director of the war-time business council, urged the business leaders to co-operate with the government in a four-day conference in Ottawa to study a "business law" which would give certain industries to other industries technical experts to other industries.

Some lumbering firms already had put a double system of labor, Mr. Little said, and a recent strike in the lumber industry had shown that there was a need for a new system of labor relations.

"Mr. Macdonald said the main reason for the strike was that the workers were not getting a fair wage," he said, "and the employers were not giving them a fair wage."

A gigantic effort to accomplish this material production was being made in Britain. The human resources are being directed into this action which will be most fruitful for the war effort.

TRIBUTE TO WORKERS—He paid tribute to the co-operation between capital and labor in the war effort.

"Britain will come out of this war in a state of material progress such as has not known for many generations," he said.

But the interest which the people will receive on their present capital expenditure of money will be very small. The government is now planning to increase the interest rate on capital expenditure.

Dead In Yugoslavia—Explosion Placed At Four Thousand—BUDAPEST, June 10.—(AP)—Four thousand persons were believed to have been killed in a gas attack on the Yugoslav front on Sunday. The attack was carried out by German forces and resulted in a great loss of life.

The Yugoslav government had shown 50,000 of munitions in the past few days. The explosion was caused by a gas attack on the Yugoslav front.

Not Satisfactory—TOKYO, June 10.—(AP)—The Netherlands East Indies' recent reply to Japanese demands for greater increased commercial ties was described here today as "very unsatisfactory" by Kishi Inchi, cabinet minister. A complete defense unit with gun, gunner, and breech mechanism was sent to several hundred pounds.

Edmonton Elk Patrol Winner In City Event

Resplendent in white silk and purple sashes, the patrol of the Edmonton Elk Association, here Monday and Tuesday, defeated a Calgary team to carry off the Roy Ponty award in drill competition at the Memorial Hall Monday night.

The Calgary team, uniformly dressed in more military style, the Edmonton men, put up stiff competition. The Calgary patrol, made up of various units of the Elk initiation ceremony, was led by the Edmonton patrol.

The evening was brought to a close with a dance with guests from all parts of the province entering their wives, families and friends.

Outline of war work being done by the Canadian order of the Elk was given in an interview Tuesday by G. King, Grand Exalted Ruler of the order for Canada and Newfoundland, with headquarters in St. John's, Nfld., was in Edmonton at noon by ladies of the Royal Purple, elite lodge, at the Elk's initiation ceremony. Elected officers will give the degree program to a close.

Just the same, things seem a little different this year. The wedding dress seems as gay as formerly and the main work of the order is to support every part of the Dominion war effort. Many members of the order have enlisted in the armed forces.

King said the national convention of Edmonton will be held in Victoria, B.C., during the third week of July. A large representation from Alberta is expected.

Victory Loan Pennant Race On As Towns Jockey For Position

The great pennant race is on and the runners are in the back stretch, some hugging the rail and keeping their places. Others are jockeying for position. The race is for honor pennants in Victory Loan 1961. The winners and the heroes are the towns and county units.

At this time the speeds of units varies as the records of horses and each unit, like a race horse, must "carry weight".

The weights in this case are the "handicappers" who set a "handicapping committee," who must work with a combination of statistics which include bank deposits, productive capacity of the territory, whether agricultural or industrial and many other factors, including records on previous bond issues.

Occasionally the "handicappers" get themselves "into the spot" when they estimate a district's capacity to absorb the loan too low. For instance, in the district of St. Albert, the handicapper estimated approximately 400 units of its quota.

There are a few districts—although not many—where the handicappers run far below their quota.

These quotas are made as the handicappers estimate the district's capacity to absorb the loan too low. For instance, in the district of St. Albert, the handicapper estimated approximately 400 units of its quota.

Just returned from a speaking tour to the southern and western states, as part of the grand sire's mission to promote the cause of world freedom, Hagerman told the Oddfellows that he had seen the world from his travels, together with an account of the work of the I.O.O.F. throughout America.

"That's why he didn't want to come to the house with her," Miss Van continued. "Because he had made up his mind not to return until he had become a pilot, but when Sybil told him I was in the hospital he rushed over here just as fast as he could."

John Van Aken had taken Sybil's hand now and she saw that his eyes were bright blue like his aunt's.

"Are you Sybil's Jack Dutton?" she asked, still bewildered.

"That's right," he replied. "And at this moment very much ashamed of myself. I was just a selfish, thoughtless kid determined to get into aviation instead of following the profession my parents had chosen for me. They had stipulated, you see, that my education had to be taken care of first and I decided the only thing to do was run away and let Joan have the money for her art course. I always intended to come back eventually and let Miss Van blame herself or think her little meddling had had anything to do with it."

TEARFUL

The expression on Miss Van's face brought tears into Faith's eyes. "Has she told you how Joan had treated her?" she demanded.

"Now, Faith," Miss Van warned, "there's no use going into that. Sybil has told me," John said. "But not until last night, when Sybil didn't know anything about it until then."

"I never told any of the girls except Faith," Miss Van admitted. "But she had been strangely quiet, spoke now."

"Can you imagine my going with Jack all this time and not knowing anything about it? And poor Miss Van, thinking he was a gangster."

"She would have been sure of it," John laughed. "If she had known that I kept you out all night."

Faith gasped. "You've told her?" She saw then that Sybil was wearing a wedding ring.

"Jack wanted to tell," Sybil explained shamelessly, "but I talked him out of it."

IS PLEASANT

"My nephew married to one of my girls," beamed Miss Van. "I had planned it myself. I agreed doing better."

"It's wonderful," Faith cried, glad that her own nephew had to have with Miss Van had enough excitement for one night, but almost she looked like a different woman. John's return had done more for her than any medicine. A nurse appeared now to warn them that visiting hours were over, but she saw the three young people to the patient good night and walked down the corridor towards the elevator.

"You can ride home with us," Sybil suggested but Faith replied, "Thanks, darling, it won't be necessary. Lee Brent is waiting for me."

"Lee Brent?" Sybil repeated. "Oh, Faith, do you mean his engagement to Brenda is off?"

"Yes. Will you come over to the car to speak to him?" Sybil asked doubtfully.

"Of course!"

"Have you told him?" Sybil questioned as they approached Lee's car.

Animal Crackers

"I certainly learned my lesson," Lee said. "I never again will tell you a thing."

"You mean you won't tell me?" Sybil asked, looking at him with a frown.

"No, I won't tell you a thing," Lee said. "I'm sorry, but I can't tell you anything more."

"What do you mean?" Sybil asked, looking at him with a frown.

"I mean the way you've been treating me," Lee said. "You've been treating me like a dog, and I won't tell you anything more."

"What do you mean?" Sybil asked, looking at him with a frown.

"I mean the way you've been treating me," Lee said. "You've been treating me like a dog, and I won't tell you anything more."

"What do you mean?" Sybil asked, looking at him with a frown.

"I mean the way you've been treating me," Lee said. "You've been treating me like a dog, and I won't tell you anything more."

"Yes, and I never told it against you any more than I do."

"Lee's attitude, however, was not as cordial as Faith had expected it to be. The knowledge that Sybil had told to him was more of a shock than Faith realized.

He had liked Sybil, had always considered her a good sport. But if she hadn't just happened to fall in love with someone else, Lee doubted that she would ever have told the truth.

It confirmed what he had always secretly believed that women were not as honest as men. Lee was of a more decent man than most of his kind. All women, that is, except Faith. He had been mistaken about her, although he had been blaming her for months and causing her suffering which could have been avoided if Sybil had played fair.

COULDN'T BE COLD

Yet even Lee could not remain cold when Faith told him that Sybil and John Van Aken were married.

He wished them happiness, and when they had gone said to Faith, "He's not exactly the type I'd have imagined her falling for, but life is like that."

"Life," Faith remarked contentedly, suggesting down beside him a wonderful future. I always intended when it doesn't seem worth living, when nothing seems to make sense, but if you wait long enough you find it all fits into a perfect pattern. Miss Van has always said we lived long enough to realize it."

Lee smiled.

"What a philosopher you're becoming, darling. I always intended to be a philosopher myself."

"And what a cynic you are," she retorted. "But you won't be once you're married to John. I'm going to be as happy as you are, and I'm going to be as happy as you are."

"You're intending to marry me?"

"These were my intentions," she confessed boldly. "The first night I met you at Mary Lee's."

CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE

WHEN Sybil and John Van Aken entered the house he had left almost four years ago, he said, "I look just the same. Good, how many times I've wished I could be like you and have a glimpse of Auntie Van and my sister. Where is Joan?"

"John, I'm sorry. She's not here. I don't know where she is. I don't know where she is."

Vote Campaign Is Scored By MacLeod Here

Determination to continue organization work in Edmonton, a review of the recent election campaign and a defence against an editorial attack in the Edmonton Journal, featured a post-election rally of the People's Movement in the Masonic Temple Monday addressed by A. A. MacLeod, Toronto, and Mrs. Derise Nielsen, M.P.

Mr. Macdonald was the People's Movement candidate in the recent Edmonton East by-election, in which Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, M.P., Liberal candidate, was elected. The Toronto publisher finished at the bottom of the poll in a three-cornered vote.

Both speakers claimed that a united front on the part of "progressive" people would have meant the defeat of Mrs. Casselman.
